I have been a member of the Industrial and Metals Supply Group for twenty years. For me, this is the biggest benefit of being an NACM member.

These groups are from similar industries, which result in sharing a common customer base. I have received more information, more feedback, by attending these monthly meetings, than any report I could access. It also built relationships with other group members, that have made great contacts for me between meetings.

Receive valuable information on just one account, and the cost of the membership has paid for itself!
